

Syndication Options with InterfaithFamily.com

InterfaithFamily.com provides resources and services for interfaith couples and families exploring Jewish life. Along with our other resources – blogs, a rabbinic officiation referral service, a database of interfaith-friendly organizations, etc. – we have a large collection of articles covering every topic of interest to interfaith families, including all major Jewish lifecycle events, Jewish holidays and every kind of relationship (from grandparenting to adoptive parents to multicultural relationships), written from a variety of perspectives (Jewish partners, non-Jewish partners, converts, children of intermarriage, rabbis, outreach workers, journalists, etc.).

There are two options for republishing content from InterfaithFamily.com:

Option 1: A la carte

Articles, which typically range from 800-1,100 words, can be bought on an as-needed basis. This is a great option for editors looking for content for supplements. Here are some samples of the kind of content that might fit your needs:

For a weddings supplement:

- “Tips for Inclusive Wedding Ceremonies”, by InterfaithFamily.com
- “Out of Many Beliefs, One Ceremony”, by Cheryl Glantz Nail
- “Tips for Parents of Children Who Are Intermarrying”, by InterfaithFamily.com
- “Where There is Love There is Life: A Hin-Jew Wedding in Texas”, by Rabbi David S. Gruber

For a babies and birth ceremonies supplement:

- “What to Do When the Baby Arrives: Tips for Inclusive Naming Ceremonies”, by InterfaithFamily.com
- “Infertility and Spirituality”, by Chana-Esther Dayan
- “When the Interfaith Family Considers Adoption”, by Ellen S. Glazer
- “A Baby-Naming That Made Me Cry: Olivia’s Ceremony”, by Melissa Desjardins

For a Passover supplement:

- “Tips for Interfaith Families: How to Make a Seder Inclusive”, by InterfaithFamily.com
- “Five Interfaith Passover Readings You Can Add to Your Haggadah”, by Rabbi Rayzel Raphael
- “What Makes This Passover Meal Different”, by Jane Larkin
- “With an Outstretched Arm”, by Rabbi Rayzel Raphael

Cost: $25 per article

Delivery method: Editors request articles from Managing Editor Benjamin Maron (benjaminm@interfaithfamily.com) on an as-needed basis.

Option 2: Biweekly syndication stream

Our syndication option allows you to receive a new original article every two weeks. All articles come with at least one high-resolution image. This is a great option if you'd like to run a regular feature on issues facing interfaith families. Recent featured articles include:

- “Kosher Dairy Lunch or What I Learned in Preschool”, by Nancy Thompson Brown
" No one except me was policing my child's lunches. I just felt as the non-Jewish partner of this family, I should be following the rules."
- “I’ll Conversion Talk If I Want To”, by Galit Breen
Galit’s professional and academic lives led her to study interfaith families. Little did she know she would meet a nice Catholic boy and write herself into her thesis.
- “How Do You Explain Death to Young Children?”, by Leah R. Singer
Leah R. Singer wondered how she would explain death to her 3-year-old daughter after her Yia Yia (Greek for "grandmother") died. The result is a helpful look at approaches to discussing death, mourning and the afterlife with young children.
- “Removing The Stumbling Block”, by Jordyn Rozensky
Raised in an interfaith family, Jordyn wondered if she was "Jewish enough" before opting for a conversion - no, affirmation - ceremony.
- “Review of The Chosen by Andrea Myers”, by David Levy
Andrea Myers's memoir, The Choosing: A Rabbi's Journey from Silent Nights to High Holy Days, reminds us that there's more than one way to create an interfaith family

Cost: $100 for a year-long subscription (25-26 articles). Substitutions may cost extra.

Delivery mode: Editors receive article and art on a biweekly basis via email. Articles may be used upon delivery or throughout the year.
